

St. Luke's join Great Plastic Pick Up

St. Luke's Primary school made the front page of the Daily Mail (Saturday, 12 May 2018) for their contribution to the 'Great plastic pick-up', a 3 day event, as part of a campaign to clean up Britain's streets and green spaces.

Equipped with gloves, sacks and litter grabbers, St. Luke's helped clean up the surrounding area of their school. Schools around the country played their part too, helping to keep Britain tidy by cleaning their local streets.

Thousands of pupils participated in the three day event, which even saw Theresa May help out in her Maidenhead Constituency by helping St Mary's Catholic Primary School with their litter pick up.

At St. Luke's, pupils from Year 2 came away with several bags of discarded litter after spending less than an hour patrolling local streets. The reporter, Jane Fryer, was overwhelmed by the enthusiasm, grit and determination of St. Luke's pupils and praised the Eco team on their dedication.

SBM Network Meeting

On Thursday, 17 May 2018, twenty six School Business Managers (SBM) from Newham gathered for their first Network Meeting of 2018.

The morning event started with networking, followed by a presentation from NPW's HR Team and Anna Crispin, NPW's Chief Executive.

After a short break guest speaker Claire Delaney, Managing Director of Schools Buying Club delivered a presentation, which focused on the procurement of catering services.

In addition to the two network meetings that take place each year, the SBM network provides an annual conference that hosts an array of guest speakers from a range of professions to support SBM's as well as space for exhibitors.

Essex Retains Gold Quality Mark

Essex Primary has once again retained its Inclusion Quality Mark Gold Flagship Status, the highest possible award in this field.

Only around 100 UK schools have achieved IQM Flagship School status. This award recognises those unique schools that have held IQM Centre of Excellence status for at least 3 years; and played a strong leadership role in developing inclusion best practice across a network of schools.

Essex Primary has proved their commitment to extend their networks further and continue to move from strength to strength in terms of their inclusive practice.

The IQM assessor spent a day at Essex, speaking to staff and pupils, gathering data and evidence to support the assessment.

The assessor commented that "Essex Primary School is an example of a school committed to meet the needs of its children and is outstanding in its commitment to and implementation of inclusive practice. It is an outstanding, caring environment for students where high expectations have a huge impact on attainment, progress and wellbeing."

The assessor was particularly impressed with the way that children understood the inclusion agenda, stating pupils "are a credit to the ethos that you promote."

He also commented that "the commitment of all staff, pupils and governors to a shared ethos is a strength of the school."

Essex Primary is delighted that its outstanding inclusive practice has been highlighted once again, and now looks forward to work with its Inclusion Cluster and promote continued outreach.

The full report can be viewed here.

Positive Handling training

In the last couple of years news stories have emerged concerning the prosecution of school staff for common assault toward pupils.

In 2016, a head teacher was accused of grabbing a child by the wrist and dragging her by the jumper. The head was cleared of any wrong-doing, however this is raising the important question of how pupils should be appropriately dealt with in situations where handling the pupil may be necessary.

To ensure school staff are knowledgeable and safe, NPW have partnered with Dynamis Training to provide a Positive Handling training courses designed to help you perform professionally, safeguard your children and protect staff from injury or legal risk when dealing with the most difficult and distressed pupils.

The first course commences on Thursday, 28 June 2018 and provides school staff who are dealing with distressed children to effectively and appropriately manage disruptive, risky or extreme situations using appropriate verbal and - where needed - physical strategies.

Attendees will learn a robust Positive Handling decision-making framework based on the legislation and national guidance for Positive Handling, coupled with a modern, pragmatic approach to last-resort holding and containment of children whose behaviour might harm themselves or others. The aim of the course is to:

- reduce injury risk
- improve inspection compliance
- safeguard staff, children and your school's reputation.

As Positive Handling is a team activity which impacts SLT, Teaching and Support staff to control risk, we recommend that schools carefully select the right number of staff to undergo this training.

The course can be undertaken at NPW's Offices or at your school, providing you have a minimum of 8 trainees.

For planned sessions at NPW Offices Francis House, we recommend that schools send a minimum of two learners to maximise the benefit of the course to their school.

If you are interested in this course and want to find out more, please visit page 14 of our Training Course Brochure here or contact Trainingsms@npw.uk.com or give us a call on 020 8249 6971 to book your place.

NQT induction – General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) compliance

To ensure that NPW (NQT Appropriate Body) is compliant with GDPR requirements, we can only keep NQT induction records for 6 years from the date an NQT starts induction (as stipulated by the DfE). All induction records prior to 1 September 2012 will be deleted by 25 May 2018.

We strongly urge all teachers who completed all or part of their induction in Newham to check their induction record is up-to-date.

Records can be accessed via the Teacher Self service Portal:

<https://teacherservices.education.gov.uk/SelfService/Login>

Teachers need their Teacher Reference Number (TRN) and national insurance number to access the portal. Once in the portal, teachers can:

- view teacher records
- obtain electronic copies of Qualified Teacher Status (QTS), Early Years Teacher Status and/or induction certificates
- obtain electronic copies of relevant leadership qualification certificates
- update personal details
- download a letter confirming teacher qualifications
- input employment details

If you have questions about the database, individual teacher records or problems accessing the service, Teachers can email the Teaching Regulation Agency

(formerly NCTL) at qts.enquiries@education.gov.uk or call 0207 593 5394.

Email teacher.induction@education.gov.uk or call 020 7593 5392 with queries relating specifically to induction.

If an induction query cannot be resolved by the induction team, then email trm@npw.uk.com stating the following information:

- personal details - name, DOB and TRN
- induction details - date started and completed induction and name of school(s)
- the nature of your query

Please note the Appropriate Body cannot respond to requests to provide copies of NQT assessments or to check a teacher's induction status.

If a teacher (who completed all or part of their induction in Newham) has gone through the above steps and their induction status is incorrect then we will check our records to confirm if induction was completed, we will then update the Teaching Regulation Agency records accordingly. We will no longer be able to respond to induction queries that pre-dates 1st September 2012.

East London Speechmaking Festival 2018

Elmhurst Teaching School Alliance is proud to be once again organising the East London Speechmaking Festival, back by popular demand. This festival aims to celebrate the power of the voice and the spoken word, and to develop the abilities of pupils and their teachers to express themselves passionately, clearly and with confidence.

KS2 pupils will learn classic speeches by heart, learning how to deliver these speeches with passion. They will also learn how to write a powerful speech and will create their own to perform.

The course:

Teachers will attend a Speechmaking Festival teacher training on 24th May 2018 at Elmhurst Primary School and the Festival on 6th July 2018 at NewVic College. This course is designed to help teachers support pupils learn and create speeches and will be facilitated by SLE Katharine Young and poet Adisa the Verbaliser. The training will encompass:

- Developing strategies for promoting confident speaking
- Developing an understanding of the classical techniques of rhetoric
- Sharing a systematic approach to creating speeches with children

All schools taking part in the speechmaking festival are expected to send one teacher to the training day. The same member of staff will prepare the pupils selected for the Speechmaking Festival and attend with the pupils. The pupils can be drawn from any KS2 year group.

Course:

Facilitating Writing that Shines

Teaching writing for maximum impact

This course is aimed at all teachers of Years Two to Six. This is two-hour course which will present a simple model for process-writing that will enable teachers to fine-tune their teaching efforts to the areas that matter – i.e. those that will have the most immediate impact for their classes.

We will also be looking at the requirements of the grammar curriculum and discussing how to make the jump from passing a SPaG test to applying the same skills to children's writing. In addition, we will be looking at some of the trickier aspects of grammar and de-mystifying a few of the most common areas of confusion.

This will be a highly-interactive afternoon that will include plenty of ideas to take-away in terms of fun, quick-to-deliver activities that, if practised on a regular basis, will show results in terms of children's up-levelled sentence skills relatively quickly as well as building a foundation for being able to replicate extended pieces of writing in a variety of genres. The course will be delivered by Wendy Skelton, literacy consultant and author.

Course summary:

- How to teach a writing process that is both reliable and replicable
- How to use modelled and shared writing time most effectively
- How to embed grammar and punctuation skills within the writing process
- How to write paragraphs with punch
- Why vocabulary choices matter

The Trainer:

Wendy Skelton is an experienced literacy consultant working with primary schools across the country and with a particular passion for children's writing. She is the author of 'Write-up! How to Teach Writing so that it Actually Makes a Difference!'

Supporting the Teaching of the New A Levels in Mathematics Using Technology

Who is this for?

Teachers of A-level mathematics who are keen to develop the use of technology in their teaching - beginners are welcome.

What is involved?

This work group will consist of 2 x 1/2 day workshops which will focus on embedding technology as a natural part of teaching and learning mathematics. Teachers will draw on and expand on their current knowledge of capabilities of calculators/graphing calculators/computer graphing and geometry packages/spreadsheets etc. Teachers will look at specifications and identify where technology can be embedded in the teaching of the topic. During this work group, delegates will identify internet accessible ready-made activities that can be used in the classroom. They will also identify skills needed for the use of (for example) Geogebra, graphical calculators etc.

Gap tasks

Gap tasks between the workshops will include a Lesson Study, allowing wider department participation in the professional development. Delegates will then review gap tasks including recognition and resolution of challenges encountered in using technology with learners. This will also give delegates an opportunity to look into planning for next year. During this time participants will have access to a NCETM community to share ideas and get advice and WG leader will be available to support participants through direct contact via email or phone.

Mastery Live

What does mastery look like in practice?

Join us in July to observe mastery teaching across 4 key stages.

The LNE maths hub would like to invite senior leaders and maths leads to an exciting event on 3rd July at Elmhurst Primary in Newham.

'Mastery Live' will be a unique opportunity to observe maths mastery lessons from EYFS – KS3 on the same topic of problem solving with addition and subtraction. Delegates will be able to watch 2 lessons from the 4 sessions to see the progression of teaching within an area of mathematics. Sessions will be led by LNE Hub mastery specialist teachers.

Following the observation of teaching, there will be a TrG (Teacher Research Group) style session, where delegates will participate in a structured feedback session on the elements of mastery teaching observed.

Debbie Morgan, Director of Primary at NCETM will deliver the keynote address and talk about the power of the TrG model in improving outcomes.

Over lunch, senior leaders from both primary and secondary schools will be available to answer questions on implementing mastery in your school. Find out what challenges they faced and how these were overcome.

This event would be perfect for senior leaders thinking of implementing maths mastery in their own schools and for schools looking to become involved with the TRG process.

Supporting teaching the New GCSE Mathematics Re-sit

A Work Group for school and college teachers with students re-sitting the new GCSE. The aim is to explore effective ways of teaching key content in the new GCSE, and also exploring ways of enabling teachers to work together towards common aims. Included in the Work Group's activity will be sessions that enable teachers to familiarise themselves with the new GCSE's structure and content, with particular attention paid to areas where this presents new challenges to teachers and/or students.

What Is Involved? Barking & Dagenham College

Session 1: Introduction to the work group and rationale, a detailed look at bar modelling for conceptual understanding in foundation topics and where these apply to teaching and exam questions. Set up gap tasks for the second session.

Session 2: Analysis of gap tasks, a further look at using bar modelling for content that bridges foundation and higher, set up further gap tasks

Session 3: This session is set up between the 2nd and 3rd GCSE papers so will be looking at likely topics for the more difficult paper 3 and collectively choosing tasks for a revision session teachers can use with resit students before the exam.

Intended outcomes:

- Increased awareness and understanding of the new GCSE's content and how to use resources effectively as part of teaching.
- Increased confidence (over the course of the academic year) in teaching the new GCSE to re-sit students
- Increased collaboration and exchange of experiences in the re-sit

- Increased engagement among GCSE re-sit students, leading, in time, to more secure learning

The wider context

The numbers of students in post-16 settings taking GCSE re-sit is large and growing. In addition, the qualification that they are now re-sitting is broader and more challenging than the one it replaced, and teachers are grappling with newly arranged and unfamiliar content.

One way of supporting teachers in this situation is to bring them together in Work Groups, led by someone with knowledge of, and some successful experience in, this area. Collecting evidence nationally from the groups using a common evaluation of their work enables successful models to be shared and built upon more widely in future years.

Work Group Lead

Gemma Boyle completed a BSc in Philosophy, Logic and Scientific method at the London School of Economics in 2008 after transferring from a degree in Actuarial Science. Her first two years as a KS5 co-ordinator have seen the year 13 maths progress grades at an ALPS 1, the highest the school have achieved.
